Weekly Reflection May 15

The White-Winged Swan of Summer

Happy are all who search for God and always do his will
- Psalm 119:2 The Message

The arrival and departure of a season is often unexpected or rather surprising. One day it is the chirping goldfinch of spring; the next the graceful white-winged swan of summer .....

The world is wet with April's rain and dusky with May's purple lilacs; and sometimes there is no sign of the first June rose. But soon the month will set itself on course.

Dawns will come fresh and sweet; noons will sparkle in tranquility; and twilights will bring baskets of sudden bloom. Unpredictable as summer's arrival may be, we know with a certain certainty that it will be here because God has given us His promise of the cycle of the seasons. We accept this promise as we accept all the other good promises He makes. This we do because of faith.

June Masters Bacher

I love to listen to the bird songs every day and hear the free winds whisper in their play, among the tall old trees and sweet wild flowers.
